

No know nature and keep it mostly knowing

Next Timberline Meeting

March 19
7:30 p.m
SPSS Library

Strange birds at the feeder

Raven Census - Feb. 26, 2014.

Six Timberliners
were out on a sunny if cool evening near a raven roost for north of Kilkerran about 3 hours, counting birds as they came in from all sides. Total count was 5569 birds. Mark says you have to deduct about 10% for likely double counts. However, Ellen and Walter did see a flock coming in from the north behind their car as they were leaving, and another flock coming in from the west as they were driving away. Also, their count may have missed quite a few as many were coming in very low behind a large stand of poplars and there is no way of telling how many didn't rise high enough to be counted.

A whale of a disaster

A group of fossilized whales has been uncovered beside the Pan-American Highway in Chile. Scientists now think so many animals died in one location because they had ingested toxic algae.

Jonathan Emos, BBC News, Feb. 24, 2014

No record of any recall being initiated at the time.

Looking Back at Club History

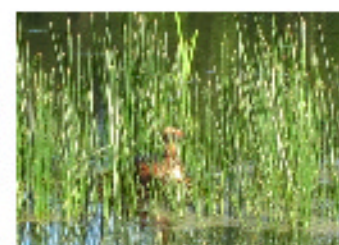

The big and small at the Clayhurst Reserve

Some Social Events

Looking for Doreen's cats Christmas party at Jean's

At Loch Haight - eared grebe on nest

Cactus hunt at Hadland's Tumbler Ridge Outing

